Q4 Target Account List

SAMPLE DOCUMENT FOR TESTING. Not real planning data. Priority, owner, and notes are invented for illustration.

Purpose

This list shows the accounts the team plans to work this quarter. Accounts are grouped by priority: A means work first, B means work after A accounts, and C means revisit later. Each account has an owner, shown by initials. Use the domain column to look up each company.

Selection criteria

Accounts were chosen for developer-facing products, a clear buyer persona, and signs of recent hiring or growth. Priority A accounts also need a warm path in, such as a past conversation or an existing champion.

#	Company	Domain	Category	Priority	Owner	Notes
1	Stripe	stripe.com	Payments	A	AK	Expansion opportunity; multiple teams already use a competitor product.
2	Notion	notion.so	Productivity software	B	JM	New logo.
3	Datadog	datadoghq.com	Observability	A	RS	Champion recently changed roles; confirm current contact before outreach.
4	Plaid	plaid.com	Financial APIs	B	AK	Intro call held; follow-up pending.
5	Ramp	ramp.com	Spend management	B	JM	New logo.
6	Vercel	vercel.com	Developer platform	A	RS	Strong fit for the developer-tools segment.
7	Supabase	supabase.com	Database platform	B	AK	New logo.
8	Mintlify	mintlify.com	Documentation platform	C	JM	Early stage; revisit next quarter.
9	Render	render.com	Cloud hosting	B	RS	New logo.
10	Temporal	temporal.io	Workflow orchestration	A	AK	Evaluating alternatives; timeline unknown.
11	LangChain	langchain.com	AI developer tools	A	JM	Large developer community; several open-source touchpoints.
12	CrewAI	crewai.com	AI agent framework	C	RS	Early stage; revisit next quarter.
13	Prefect	prefect.io	Workflow orchestration	B	AK	Recently announced a combination with another data company.
14	Nango	nango.dev	Integrations platform	C	JM	Small team; low priority.
15	Infisical	infisical.com	Secrets management	B	RS	New logo.
16	Clay	clay.com	GTM data platform	B	AK	Partner account; coordinate with partnerships team.

Next steps

Owners should confirm the current contact for each Priority A account this week. Accounts marked C will be reviewed again at the start of next quarter.